Rally & raffle:

West Sac burger stand uses occasion to help out wheelchair athletes

The West Sacramento River City Rodsters recently held a rally and raffle at Whitey's Jolly Kone and Steve and Paula Ericson, who own and operate Whitey's, bought one of the "Whitey's Jackets" being raffled off for $300 and then donated the money to the Capital Cagers Wheelchair basketball team.

"We liked the fact that this is a local group," said Paula Ericson, "and we also wanted to help them publicize their First Annual Capital Cagers Classic, which is a golf tournament they are going to hold on August 18th at Bing Maloney Golf Course. They're a great group of guys and we just thought it would be nice to try and help them out."

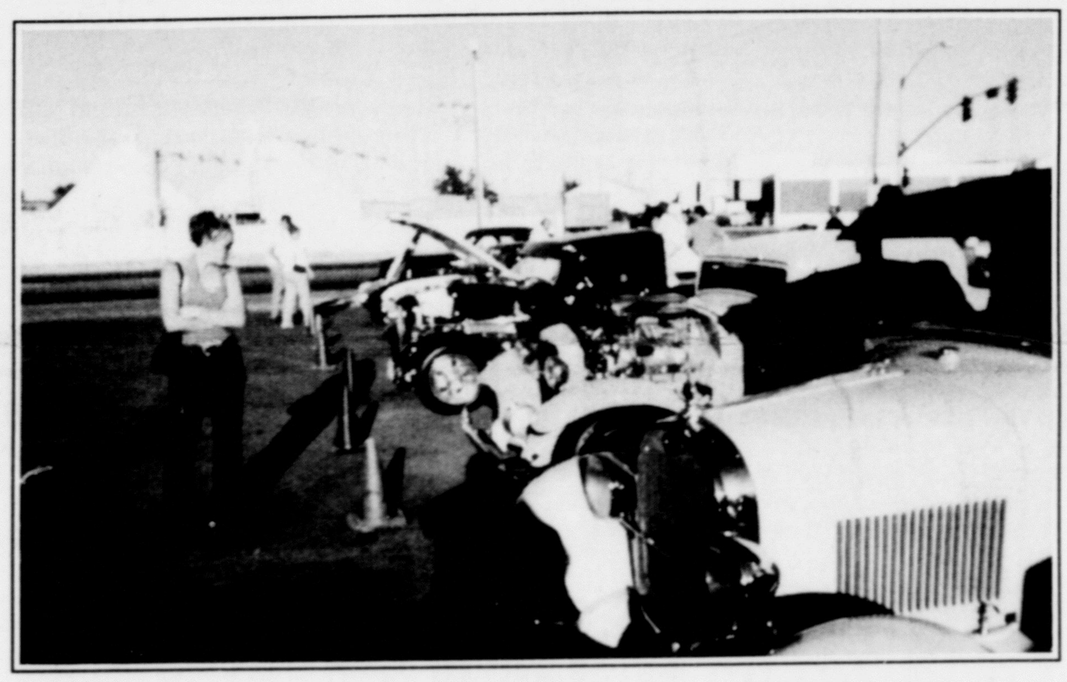

Anyone interested in joining the Capital Cagers in a four man best ball scramble tournament complete with a BBQ dinner and lots of prizes can do so by contacting Russ Naldrett at 371-3823 or Andy Vincent at 371-6966 or 374-3863. The event is being held to benefit the Capital Cagers wheelchair basketball team and the entry fee is $75 per player. Bing Maloney golf course is located at 6801 Freeport Boulevard and the tournament begins at 1 p.m.

New candidate for 8th District Assembly

JOHN MUNN

Davis School Board member John Munn announced July 20 that he will be a candidate for State Assembly in the upcoming election. He will seek the Republican nomination for the Eighth District Assembly seat being vacated (due to term limits) by Democrat Helen Thomson.

Also seeking the Republican nomination is former Woodland councilman Dan Ryhal.

Among the Democrats who have declared for the race are West Sacramento city council member Christopher Cabaldon, Vacaville resident Steve Hardy, Woodland's Stephen Lewis and Yolo County Supervisor Lois Wolk of Davis.

Yolo County Supervisor Michael McGowan, a West Sacramento resident, has canceled plans to run for the seat.

Munn has lived in Davis since 1978 with his wife Shelley and their three children, two of whom are now in college. He has served on the Davis School Board from 1997 through 2001, and has been president of the Yolo County School Boards Association, president of the Professional Soil Scientists Association of California, chairman of the Yolo County Republican Central Committee, and the Republican nominee for State Assembly in the November 2000 election.

Munn made his announcement at a new school construction project in South Davis, "it is in such places that the outcomes and consequences of government decisions are most apparent," he said. "This site also served as a reminder of problems that are being faced by schools and other local governments because the state is not paying attention to its basic responsibilities."

"Plans for school construction and modernization in communities throughout the state have been made with the assumption that matching funds will be available," he added in a statement to the media. "These state funds are paid for by all of California's taxpayers. . . and they should be available to all communities. But while the Legislature has been quick to impose mandates on school programs, they have allowed the matching funds for school construction to become depleted, and what is left has been earmarked for urban schools. This has delayed needed school repairs and construction in all parts of California."

Munn believes the current Democratic state legislature has depleted a multi-billion dollar budget surplus "inherited from eight years of budget discipline under Governor Pete Wilson."

He promises to work for lower taxes and reducing the size of government, as well as the return of funding control to local communities. He also hopes to help improve the state's road-

Washington Unified: campus modernization begins

School bond approved by voters in 1999 will help fund campus repairs & renovation on nine campuses

The Washington Unified School District in West Sacramento announced Friday that modernization efforts made possible by a 1999 school bond are now underway. The district expects to spend $24.3 million from bond sales and matching state funds to upgrade nine local campuses, with work expected to finish by September, 2002.

The announcement came Friday from the administration of Stu Greenfeld, who took the district's superintendent post last month.

Additional bond money paying for new construction at local schools has been delayed. The W.U.S.D. school board voted earlier this year to delay the "new construction" bond sales after state matching money became held up in litigation. The board had promised, during the original school bond campaign, not to sell the bonds (and incur debt for local property owners) unless the matching money was available.

Planned local modernization improvements include:

■ Alyce Norman Elementary School: new heating and air conditioning equipment in classes and other student areas; new power and distribution system for computers in classrooms; new plumbing, fire alarms and emergency communication systems; a new stage in the multipurpose room; new carpet for classrooms; paint indoors and out; roofing repairs; upgraded electrical service and disabled access; renovation of pod and restrooms.

■ Bryte Elementary School: new heating and air conditioning in classrooms and other student areas; new power and distribution system for computers in classrooms; new fire alarms and emergency communications system; indoor and outdoor paint; roof repairs; window and door replacement where needed; upgrades to electrical system; upgraded disabled access; renovation of restrooms; new carpet in classrooms.

■ Elkhorn Elementary School: Installation of heating and air conditioning equipment in classrooms and other student areas; new power and distribution system for computers in all classrooms; new plumbing; new paint indoors and out; roof repairs; replacement of doors and windows where needed; upgrades to electrical service and disabled access; restroom renovation; new carpets in classrooms.

■ Evergreen Elementary School: Installation of heating and air conditioning equipment in classrooms and other student areas; new power and distribution system for computers in all classrooms; new plumbing; new fire alarms and emergency communications system; roof repairs; new paint inside and out; door and window replacement where needed; upgrades to electrical system and disabled access; renovation of restrooms; new carpet in classrooms.

■ Westfield Elementary School: Installation of heating and air conditioning equipment in classrooms and other student areas; new power and distribution system for computers in all classrooms; new plumbing; new fire alarms; roof repairs; new paint inside and out; door and window replacement where needed; upgrades to electrical system and disabled access; renovation of restrooms; new carpet in classrooms.

■ Westmore Oaks Elementary School: Installation of heating and air conditioning equipment in classrooms and other student areas; new power and distribution system for computers in all classrooms; new plumbing; new fire alarms and emergency communications system; roof repairs; new paint inside and out; door and window replacement where needed; upgrades to electrical system and disabled access; renovation of restrooms; new carpet in classrooms.

■ Golden State Middle School: Repair/replace heating and air conditioning systems in classrooms and other student areas; install new gym bleachers; new plumbing, fire alarms and emergency communications system; new power and distribution system for classroom computers; roof repairs; indoor and outdoor paint; door and window replacement where needed; new carpet and tile in classrooms; upgraded electrical service; upgraded disabled access; restroom renovations; gym and locker room renovation; and repair of asphalt and concrete where needed.

■ River City High School: Installation of heating and air conditioning equipment in classrooms and other student areas; new power and distribution system for computers in all classrooms; new security systems; new plumbing; new fire alarms and emergency communications system; roofing repairs; new carpet and tile in classrooms; interior and exterior paint; door and window replacement where needed; upgraded electrical service and disabled access; and renovation of restrooms; new carpet and tile in classrooms.

(The district is also building a two-story building containing ten classrooms and two restrooms at River City High School, expecting it to be complete in October. The $1,8 million building is being funded by developer fees and redevelopment agency funds.)

■ Yolo Continuation High School: Installation of heating and air conditioning equipment in classrooms and other student areas; new power and distribution system for computers in all classrooms; new security systems; new plumbing; roof repairs; indoor and outdoor paint; door and window replacement where needed; upgraded electrical service and disabled access; and renovation of restrooms; new carpet and tile in classrooms.

District officials warn that street detours may be caused occasionally due to the modernization and construction efforts. For information, call Jim Sweeney (375-7604 ext. 2222) or Kelly Porterfield (375-7690).

Counseling, crisis help expands at GSMS

A $1,000 donation from the West Sacramento Foundation to the Yolo Family Service Agency will increase the number of hours that the Allied Services for Kids (ASK) counseling program is available at the Golden State Middle School campus in West Sacramento.

The ASK program has also received contributions from Trinity Presbyterian Church and United Way California Capitol Region, increasing the organization's ability to provide counseling and crisis intervention.

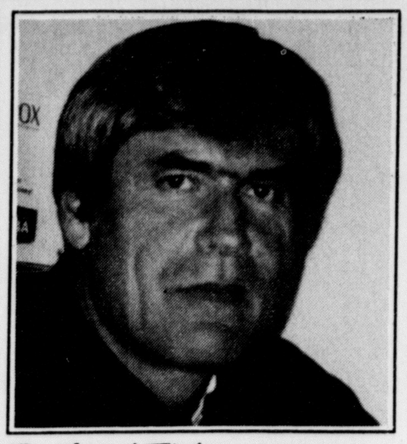

The counseling center hopes to expand to five days per week on the middle school campus. It charges no fees to young clients. The ASK staff also works with teachers and administration at each Yolo County school site it maintains a presence, offering guidance to school personnel on mental health issues.

The ASK crisis line locally is 371-3779. For more information on the program, call 375-1254.

Remembering West Sacto resident Millie Novak

Note: Two weeks ago, West Sacramento lost one of its kindest, most generous souls when Millie Novak died in her sleep at the age of 84. The following column is reprinted in her memory.

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Someone who can't stand working where he's presently employed recently asked me if I have ever had a job I actually liked.

"Painting houses," I answered immediately.

"You're kidding?" he said, looking at me like I was crazy.

"No, I'm serious."

"I didn't know you painted houses."

"Every summer for about six or seven years," I said.

"The outside of houses?"

"I do interiors now and then, too."

"And you actually enjoy it?"

I nodded my head and he gave me a look of genuine disbelief before he tactfully changed the subject.

I often wonder why house painting in general, and house painters in particular, are held in such low regard. Now it's true that Adolph Hitler started out as a house painter, but that shouldn't be held against all those who have since picked up a brush.

Someone once said that all work is honorable, and the simple fact of the matter is that house painting is actually one heck of a good job. To begin with, it usually only takes a weekend to paint most houses and you wouldn't believe what people will pay you to do it. Although the work is often a little demanding physically, you're doing it out-of-doors and it's a great way to stay in shape. It's also one of the few jobs I have ever had where at the conclusion of a few days work, you can actually see the end result of all your labor. Plus, if you've done the job correctly, the customer is usually thrilled and the neighborhood even looks a little better.

The real fun of being a house painter, though, is in all the really nice and interesting people you get to meet. In fact, I could go on and on about all the wonderful people I have met while painting houses in West Sacramento, but one lady in particular stands out.

A few summers ago, I received a phone call from a woman with a very friendly voice who lived on Gardenia Street. She had gotten my name from a friend-of-a-friend and she wanted to know if I might be interested in giving her an estimate on how much it would cost to paint her house. Since I only live a block away from Gardenia Street, I thought it would be a good job to take, and I got on my bike and pedaled over to talk to her. She turned out to be just as sweet in person as she had been on the telephone and we quickly agreed on a price and a date to begin working.

Four or five very hot hours into the job, while she was serving me yet another much appreciated soft drink, it dawned on me that I didn't even know her last name.

"Millie," I asked, "what did you say your last name was?"

"Novak," she answered.

"That name sure sounds familiar," I said. "I went to high school with a really nice guy named Tony Novak. Any relation to you?"

The cheerful expression which hardly ever left Millie's face suddenly disappeared and her eyes began to fill with tears.

"Tony was my son," she finally answered with a brave voice. "He died from cancer a few years ago."

Her words, and the way she said them, took my breath away.

Over the next few days, Millie and I talked at length about her and my memories of her son. Like many friends I had made in high school, I had lost track of Tony soon after I graduated, but he had been such a special young man that my memories of him were vivid and easy to recall. He had been one of the smartest kids in the class of 1965 and everyone seemed to like him. He was very good looking, extremely conscientious and you only had to spend a few minutes with him to know that he was going places, and that he would be very successful someday at whatever he decided to do. He was also exceptionally nice and helpful to everyone and I can recall at least two classes in my junior year where he went out of his way to help me improve my grades. He once even whispered me a few answers I desperately needed to pass an important math test I was about to fail.

So, as I painted, Millie and I visited. We remembered the good times, when Tony and I were young, and when most of life's tragedies were still way off in the future. It was so obvious to see where Tony had picked up so many wonderful qualities, and how lucky he had been to have such a great mom.

Like any number of painting jobs I've had, I actually hated to see the one on Gardenia Street come to an end, but Millie is now a good and cherished friend who I see all the time on my bike rides, and come the holidays, her's is the one Christmas card I most eagerly await.

Tony Venditti update: Tony is now doing all his own breathing, he is fully alert and out of his coma, and just a few days ago he was sitting up in his hospital bed and watching his favorite movie, "Grease". He is scheduled to go to Vallejo in the near future where he will spend approximately three challenging weeks in a rehabilitation clinic and then he will return to his home in West Sacramento.

The News-Ledger will be doing an interview with Tony later this week to fully update his many West Sacramento friends on his condition, which is getting better by the day. For anyone wishing to send Tony an e-mail, his address is tonyv98@onebox.com.

SPORTS

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

The San Francisco Giants (57-49) pulled out the broom in Arizona this weekend knocking the Diamondbacks out first place with a four game sweep as the Giants make their move on first place in the West. The Giants payback from last weekends battle with the division leading Diamondbacks was sweet revenge. The Backs and Giants had a bench clearing near brawl with Arizona last weekend at Pac Bell Park that left some very hard feelings. The bad news is the Dodgers moved into first place so the Giants didn't gain much ground on first place. The Giants are still 4 games out first place.

The Giants were very active before the trade deadline acquiring 40 year old first baseman, Andres Galarraga,to protect Kent and Bonds in the middle of the line up. Galarraga arrived just in time to fill in for the injured, J.T. Snow and Giants haven't lost game since. The Giants didn't stop there as they neared the trading deadline of July 31st. The Giants also dealt rightfielder, Armando Rios and rookie pitcher Steve Vogelsong to Pittsburgh for their ace starter Jason Schmidt ($3.2 million) and rightfielder, John Vander Wal ($1.55 million), who didn't come cheap. The Giants are making their move in the west with their starting rotation that includes Estes, Rueter, Hernandez, Ortiz and now Schmidt. The Giants also release infielder, Felipe Crespo, who then was traded to the Phillies for middle reliever, Wayne Gomes. The Giants return home to host the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Philadelphia Phillies this weekend.

The Oakland A's are still hanging on to MVP, Jason Giambi as they move in on the wild card spot in the American League. The A's trail Boston and Minnesota by only 4 game in the race to the playoffs. The A's dealt two of the River Cats star players in Mario Encarnacion and last years MVP, Jose Ortiz to the Colorado Rockies. Ortiz reported to the Rockies but Encarnacion was sent to Colorado Springs to wait for the trade deadline action to subside. The good news is the A's acquired Jermaine Dye, a Vacaville product, to play rightfield and bat clean up.

The Gatos (53-56) are on a six game winning streak and remain in first place just a 1/2 game ahead of the Las Vegas 51's. The Cats will finish out their current home stand and head out to Memphis and Nashville for a couple of 4 game sets.

The Sacramento Knights are gearing up for the 2001 season with a free game on August 2nd against the Central California All-Star team. The game is set for 7 p.m. at the Arco and parking is free. Speaking of Soccer the Los Angeles Galaxy will be playing an exhibition game against Necaxa from Mexico on August 7th at Hughes Stadium. Tickets are priced at $20, $30.

The N.F.L pre-season opens this Friday with the Atlanta Falcons hosting the Pittsburgh Steelers. The Oakland Raider open their pre-season against Dallas this Saturday night (6:00 p.m. ch.31).

See ya next week!

River Cats give $15,000 to teens' recovery program

The River Cats Foundation has awarded $15,000 to the "Youth for Recovery Program" operated by CommuniCare in Yolo County.

The program serves more than 90 youths age 13-18 with substance abuse problems. The funds will help provide recreational opportunities for the teens and their families, including family fun night, outdoor adventure challenges and a residential family camp.

The Foundation is operated by partners involved in operating the Sacramento River Cats baseball team and stadium.

The Foundation has pledged to give over $100,000 this year to qualifying organizations.

The West Sacramento Dolphins recently completed a very successful season with 3rd place finishes in championship and dual meets, taking home a record 117 medals, including 20 gold, 19 silver, and 78 bronze.

High point winners for Dolphins swimmers were: Derek Wampler (boys 7-8); Elizabeth Montez (girls 9-10); and Stacey Paige (girls 15-18). Derek Wampler also broke the conference boys 7-8 record for the 25-yard freestyle with a time of 15:13, and Brittany Rojo broke the conference girls 7-8 record for the 15-yard butterfly (twice) with her final time of 18:02. In addition, West Sacramento took first and second place in the parent relays for the fourth year in a row.

An awards banquet for the Dolphins is scheduled for August 4th from 12-6 p.m. at the River City High School swimming pool.

Doctor of Chiropractic Charyl Silva, who owns and operates West Sacramento Chiropractic, which is located at the intersection of Jefferson Boulevard and Park Boulevard, spent her formative years traveling around the Western United States.

"My father was in banking," explained Charyl, "and every time he got promoted, we moved to a new town. I was very shy when I was young, and always having to go to a new school wasn't easy. By the time I graduated from high school, we had lived in almost all of the western states, including California, Idaho, Alaska and Nevada. My parents divorced when I was in my junior year and my three sisters stayed in Alaska with my mother, but I moved to Las Vegas and got a job at the Sands Hotel doing computer work. After I had saved up a little money, I enrolled in the University of Las Vegas and majored in biology. I lived in a little studio apartment, drove an old, old Chevy, and worked nights to put myself through college."

Charyl moved out to California and finished her bachelor of science degree at California State University at Bakersfield. She took substitute teaching jobs and also worked for a large oil company for a few years.

"I had always been interested in the field of medicine," said Charyl, "and I began to seriously look into the possibility of going back to school in the health field. After I to talked to some close friends and did a lot of serious research, I decided to enroll in a four year course of study at the Los Angeles College of Chiropractic."

Becoming a doctor of chiropractic instead of a doctor of medicine appealed to Charyl on a number of different levels.

"I've always believed in the holistic approach to medicine," explained Charyl, "and I'm a firm believer that patients with pain are taking way too many pills and undergoing way too many surgeries. The human body has this marvelous ability to heal itself if we give it the right kind of help, and being a chiropractor gives me the opportunity to do that."

Charyl came to Sacramento in the late 1980s to stay with friends and soon discovered that West Sacramento would be a great place to open up her own chiropractic practice.

"Steve Roberts and Tiffany Lopes at the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce did a wonderful job of showing me around and I was really impressed with the fact that people who live in West Sacramento know and like each other and have a very strong tendency to stay in West Sacramento," said Charyl. "I didn't want to live and work in a community where everybody was leaving every seven years. So I opened up West Sacramento Chiropractic in 1990 and I have been here ever since."

"Dr. Silva immediately diagnosed my problem," said Don Schatzel, "and then she immediately fixed it. Since I went to her, my problem has not returned, but if it did, I wouldn't hesitate to go back to her again. She really knows what she's doing and I highly recommend her to your readers."

"For the past four years I have seen Dr. Silva on a regular basis," said Teri Davis. "She's very gentle and very good at what she does. She has also helped my husband with his back pain and my son has gone to her, too. I guess you could say she is our family chiropractor and our overall health is better because of her."

"I was one of those people who wasn't a real big believer in chiropractors," said Jeff Morgan, "but that was until I went to Dr. Silva. I'm a firefighter and I'm always pulling or straining something, and in addition to traditional chiropractic procedures, Dr. Silva also provides massage, ultra sound, and ice treatments, and she has truly been a godsend to me. I think quite highly of her."

Charyl currently lives out on Davis Road with her 11-year-old daughter, Caity, who attends Our Lady of Grace School, and her significant other, Joseph, who works for the Halliburton Corporation in Woodland.

"We absolutely love where we live," said Charyl. "Not only is the house just what I've always wanted, but there is also plenty of space for my horse, BJ, our three goats, all the chickens, and our two dogs and two cats. There's something really nice about living in an area where you can still run into coyotes, skunks, and raccoons."

In Charyl's free time, she is actively involved in West Sacra-

"I love this city and the people in it," said Charyl, "and I never get tired of having patients in my office and helping them get well. It takes time to build up a good chiropractic practice, but now I have great patients, a very hard-working and competent office assistant in Nai Saejao, and I couldn't be happier with the way things have turned out. I take as much time as needed with each and every one of my patients and I hope any of your readers who are experiencing headaches or neck and back pain will give me a call and let me see if I can help."

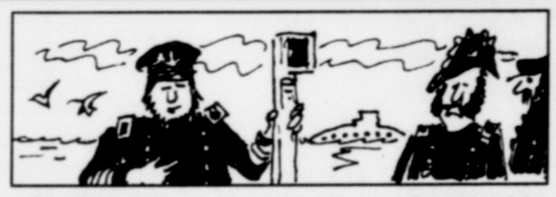

West Sacramento Chiropractic is located at 900 Jefferson Boulevard, Suite 110, and Charyl's office can be reached by calling 372-8383.

OPINION

Letters to the Editor

Why did we incorporate?

Did we incorporate so that we would have control of our own resources? Did we incorporate so that we would have control of four own destiny? I thought so until the city's response to infrastructure needs took a lower priority than the city's need to develop. Example: Raley Field, which we all like and enjoy, was built in a year with the help of all the resources of our city. Not a bad thing, but there are several places in our city, Arlington Oaks, most of the Jefferson Boulevard corridor, some of the properties on and around East Linden, and as the mayor pointed out, the state street neighborhoods, as well as parts of Broderick and Bryte, just to name about two thirds of the older established neighborhoods of this city that have been paying taxes here since before 1953 and before Bridgeway Island or Beazer Homes, Park Lane and all the rest were ever thought of, or even before the Port was here, that need infrastructure of one kind or another.

These pioneer neighborhoods all have paid and continue to pay in one way or another. So yes, why not help each other (one neighborhood to another). That's why we incorporated and that's what being a community is all about, not what we can or can't do on our own, not by the city making money off of the individual projects, but collectively as one community, West Sacramento.

It's about time.

As was well stated in the News-Ledger two weeks ago, a lot of these problems could be more easily handled if the redevelopment zones were better aligned and staff had started the process when the council gave them direction to look into the process several months ago, and again now we are under the gun, time is not our friend and those infrastructure needs can't wait for that long process.

Now the city (or the council) wants to make a statement, they want to build a new city hall that will cost us all a lot of money, a city hall that is to be built on a piece of real estate that presents a lot of problems right from the start and most surely we could do better by taking a step back and asking some very troubling questions, such as: Where will all the employees park who work there? Where will the people who need to use the facility park? And why are we in such a hurry to make this expensive statement when it has been put off so many times before?

A project of this caliber that will impact all the citizens of West Sacramento for years to come and that doesn't contain all the components of the original proposal centrally located, seems to be a choice of the council, not the people, and should be put to a vote. The health and safety of this city's residents should take a much higher priority than making a statement of a city hall, whatever that statement may be. It's about time we did things right for the first time, rather than keep paying for our mistakes to get it right.

Say what you mean and mean what you say.

Help the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce pick a theme for this year's Community Day Parade and win a $50 gift certificate from Toys-R-Us

This year's Community Day Parade will be held on Community Day (the first Saturday in October), October 6, 2001. The parade will have a slightly new route, and a new starting time of 10 a.m..

The parade will end at the site of the 2nd annual West Sacramento Education Carnival, where there will be plenty of food, fun and education. Also scheduled for Community Day is a Historic Festival celebrating West Sacramento and Yolo County's past.

So here is what we need. We invite children under 12 to send in their idea for a theme for this year's Community Day Parade. The inventor of the winning theme will win a $50 gift certificate from Toys-R-Us. If more than one person submits the same winning theme, the winner will be drawn from the winning theme entries.

For an entry form to be in the parade, call the Chamber office at 371-7042. Deadline for the theme contest is August 10, 2001. All decisions are final and there will only be one grand prize awarded. Entries must be submitted in writing, and must have parent or guardian permission.

Address _____
Age: _____
Signature of parent or guardian _____

Entries should be mailed to the Chamber at Box 404 West Sacramento, Ca 95691
